UK Outlook for Thursday 2 Sep 2021 to Saturday 11 Sep 2021:
High pressure is expected to be in charge across the UK at first. Most areas will see a continuation of dry weather with variable cloud and some spells of sunshine. Over the weekend outbreaks of rain may start to spread to some southern and western areas, with mostly dry weather continuing elsewhere. Temperatures are likely to be close to average for most, but rather cool in eastern regions. Into the following week it is likely that an unsettled spell of weather will develop, bringing showers or longer spells of rain across many parts of the UK. The wettest conditions will probably be across northwestern areas with the driest weather in the south and southeast. Temperatures are likely to be near or a little above average.
